How to use

Let's walk through each page of the Tracker so you know exactly how to use it (and how many pages to print, etc.). These are just suggestions - please customize your Tracker in the way that works best for your homeschool!

A master binder and page dividers for each child are very useful to have when organizing these tracking pages.

Week at a Glance - You'll find space to write in for each day of the week for easy schedule tracking. Print out one for each week if you'd like (I like to print out a few at a time in case I need to plan ahead).

Month at a Glance - If you like to see the entire month at a time, this sheet has one line per day you can write on. You would need one sheet per month.

Important Dates - Print out one. There is a box for each month on this page you can track important dates for the year on.

Monthly Goal Tracker - There are 4 pages, with 3 months per page. Use this to keep track of your own goals for your homeschool year.

Goal Tracker - You'll want to print one per student; use this page to record their goals, action steps needed to work towards that goal, and check them off as they are completed! If you want to use a reward system per goal, there is a spot to write that in.

How to use

Daily Schedule - The hours of your day go down the left side of this chart (ex. 6am, 7am, etc. OR you can do time spans like 6-7am, 7-8am, etc.). Use this page to create a weekly schedule for your family's homeschool. You can keep it in your master binder, but I like to laminate it and hang it up so it's easy to see all the time.

Attendance Tracker - If your state requires you to track attendance, you'll print off one page per student. You can track the entire year on this page.

Hours Tracker - Some states require you to track hours of instruction per child, and this page will be very handy for that. You'll print off one per student, per month. Subjects go across the top of the chart, and you'll write the hours completed each day of that month in the boxes.

Spaces at the bottom allow you to tally up the hours each month and track them by core-home, core-away, and non-core hours.

Weekly Tracker - I print one for each child. Write their name in the top banner, and list the subjects down the left side of the chart. I then laminate the page (or you can put it in a page protector). You can use this page in a couple of different ways:

- Each week, write their tasks for each subject in the squares; they can mark them off as they are completed each day.

How to use

- Leave the boxes blank, and have your kids track the work they complete each day in the box.
- Leave the boxes blank, and have your kids put an "X" in the box as they complete the assignments each day.
- If you have to keep track of hours, have your kids write in the hours they complete each day for each subject. Makes it easy for you to record those hours on your Hours Tracker sheet!

Before laminating, you might also gray out/color in spaces where a certain subject might not be required on a specific day.

Curriculum Tracker - There are two sheets/options for this included. The first one is a general tracker where you can make notes on different curriculum options and their cost. The second page should be used to keep specific track of what curriculum was used per student.

Field Trip Tracker - Use the "Field Trips at a Glance" sheet to make an overall plan for field trips you want to take this year. The Field Trip Tracker can be used during each field trip if you want to track specifics.

Reading Tracker - Track the title, date, and minutes read. Print one for each student.

Grades Tracker - Here is where you can do general grade recording throughout the year. Print one per child, and possibly one per subject if you want to keep them separate.

How to use

Skill Builder Tracker - Has your child ever finished a unit and are mostly ready to move on, but there is a skill or two you know they should continue to improve? Keep track of those skills here so you can easily remember to re-visit them!

Homeschool Report Card - Track quarterly grades and final grades per subject.

Website Tracker - Easily keep track of all your online learning accounts.

Chore Tracker - Print one for each child for whom you'd like to track daily chores. Write in the chores, laminate, and use a dry erase marker to mark them off when complete.

Service Tracker - A space to keep track of service hours. Print off one for each child you'd like to track this for.

Notes - Print as many as you'd like to keep in your master binder to write down anything that comes to your mind during the day.

Student Binder Cover - There are 3 options at the end for covers for your child's binder or portfolio for the year. This is just a separate binder you might keep to store any work samples or artifacts you need for your state homeschool requirements. Any logs, grade sheets, etc. that you fill out from this tracker can be stored in your student's portfolio when completed. Write in their name, grade, and the school year.
